United Way of the Central Savannah River Area	United Way of the Central Savannah River Area	FD000320	(706) 724-5544	pbobrow@uwcsra.org	www.uwcsra.org	United Way of the CSRA unites people and mobilizes community resources to create lasting changes that transform lives. Since 1936, United Way of the Central Savannah River Area (UWCSRA) has been a vital force in the community we serve, which is centered in Augusta, Georgia and spans 11 counties in Georgia and two communities in South Carolina. Over the decades, we have evolved from a small fundraising coalition to a major source of funding for community service organizations in the CSRA, and now into a coalition-building and direct services nonprofit that leads and coordinates our area's responses to its most pressing issues. Today, UWCSRA continues to support local nonprofits and community initiatives as it has for decades, and we actively identify and fill gaps in the community support network through direct service programs. Our direct service programs include the 211 Crisis Helpline, Mission United services for veteran families, Project DASH emergency food delivery to the homebound, Ride United in partnership with Lyft for rides to critical appointments, Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) free tax preparation for low-income families, and more. When you give to United Way of the CSRA, you're ensuring families have access to essentials like childcare, food, job training, transportation, and health services. You're building a community where everyone has the support and opportunity to thrive, not just survive.

United Way of the Central Savan	Murphy-Harpst Childrens Centers Inc		(770) 823-2858	csimpson@murphyharpst.org	https://murphyharpst.org/	The Evolve Project is a small, community-based program providing safety, security, and evidenced-based therapeutic services for foster children with limited placement options. The program targets children with acute trauma recovery, mental health, and behavior management needs. Most youth have had multiple failed placements and reside in hotels or are exiting psychiatric treatment. Trained foster parents, behavioral therapists, and counselors provide intensive services that promote resiliency, positive coping skills, and life skills to successfully transition into communities. Many youth face homelessness, incarceration, and further abuse without intensive services such as ours. Ultimately, our model seeks to stabilize youths’ behaviors and transition them to a lower level of care, foster home, or with family. In the next year, The Evolve project seeks to serve 25 youth in 5 homes and achieve the following outcomes: 90% of children will decrease disruptive behaviors. 94% of children will increase life skills and positive communication tools. 90% of children will be ready to transition to a lower level of care. The Evolve Project seeks to increase the number of community-based solutions for Georgia’s foster children. Addressing this need will help youth in foster recover from deep-rooted trauma and engage in healthy communities.

United Way of the Central Savan	United Way of the Central Savannah River Area		(706) 724-5544	pbobrow@uwcsra.org	www.uwcsra.org	United Way of the CSRA unites people and mobilizes community resources to create lasting changes that transform lives. Since 1936, United Way of the Central Savannah River Area (UWCSRA) has been a vital force in the community we serve, which is centered in Augusta, Georgia and spans 11 counties in Georgia and two communities in South Carolina. Over the decades, we have evolved from a small fundraising coalition to a major source of funding for community service organizations in the CSRA, and now into a coalition-building and direct services nonprofit that leads and coordinates our area's responses to its most pressing issues. Today, UWCSRA continues to support local nonprofits and community initiatives as it has for decades, and we actively identify and fill gaps in the community support network through direct service programs. Our direct service programs include the 211 Crisis Helpline, Mission United services for veteran families, Project DASH emergency food delivery to the homebound, Ride United in partnership with Lyft for rides to critical appointments, Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) free tax preparation for low-income families, and more. When you give to United Way of the CSRA, you're ensuring families have access to essentials like childcare, food, job training, transportation, and health services. You're building a community where everyone has the support and opportunity to thrive, not just survive.
United Way of the Central Savan	Wilkes County Community Partnership, Inc.		(706) 678-7570	llee.wilkesccp@gmail.com	https://www.wilkeschildren.org/	Wilkes County Community Partnership (WCCP) is a community-based non-profit organization which works to improve the quality of life for all citizens of Washington-Wilkes, Georgia by working to reduce barriers and increase positive factors within our county. WCCP promotes the well-being of Washington-Wilkes children and families, and to that end, over the last few years, our community has seen a reduction in teen pregnancies, fewer adjudicated youth, improved standardized test scores, improved parenting skills, and more children enrolled in Head Start and Pre-K.
